TELEPHONE SYSTEMS

State-of-the-art telephone systems, integrated, reliable & affordable

An integrated phone system is typically phone devices, like handsets and/or a desktop stations, that are able to handle multiple functions at once. Sometimes these functions are really simple, like multiple voicemail boxes, but in most cases the phones are capable of many different applications, including managing multiple lines and allowing for Internet connectivity. Entire integrated systems usually link all related phone services, including facsimile and mobile phones, and typically offer consolidated billing. Both phones and service plans like this are primarily designed for businesses that need the ability to quickly and efficiently manage calls.

PCS carries a wide range of options that will meet your needs as well as budget.
